

Polar bear

The polar bear is the largest carnivorous mammal which lives on the ice around the North Pole, bordering the Arctic Ocean

Perfectly adapted to its habitat, the polar bear has a thick layer of fat and a fur to protect it from the cold. The white color of its coat gives it a perfect camouflage on the ice and its black skin allows the polar bear to better trap the heat from the sun. It is equipped with a short tail and small ears it has a relatively small head and an elongated body so it's well adapted to swim.

